CANADIANS ASK STOP TO IMMIGRATION FROM JAPAN

Ottawa House "Considering Further Restriction"

Tokio Papers Approve Protest Note Sent To America

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, June 3.—Japan's protest to the United States on the Exclusion Act is generally approved by this morning's papers.

The Jiji regards it as a clear and eloquent expression of Japan's views. It hopes, however, that America will consider it addressed not only by a Government to a Government, but by a people to a people, and will not reply with a diplomatic argument only, which would aggravate the situation.

The Asahi is confident that America will respond to the spirit in which Japan's protest is sent.

The Yamato declares that language expresses only half the real feelings of Japan, which should not be judged by the reception accorded to the fliers and to Mr. Woods.

The Yorodzu is of opinion that the protest is a preliminary to more positive steps by the Government for the adjustment of the situation.

The inadvisability of the selection of Dr. Schurman as a successor to Mr. Woods is again drawn attention to by the Jiji.

(Reuter's American Service)

Ottawa, June 2.—In the Dominion House of Commons today the Minister of Immigration, Mr. J. A. Robb, said that representations had been received from retail merchants in British Columbia requesting the same restrictions on Japanese Immigration as obtain in the case of Chinese. The question of the advisability of further restriction of Japanese immigration was under consideration. The Japanese Government had agreed to restrict the number of Japanese coming to Canada annually as household servants or agricultural laborers to 150, this constituting the quota now allowed to enter, though the total number of Japanese entering last year was 448.

Tokio, June 3.—All the Tokio and Osaka newspapers were represented at a meeting held in Tokio tonight to protest against the American exclusion legislation. A resolution was adopted declaring their "grim determination" not to abide permanently by the "rash and discriminatory decision" of Congress.

Japan Society In London Hears Balfour Tribute

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 2.—The annual banquet of the Japan Society tonight was presided over by Baron Hayashi, the Japanese Ambassador, Prince Arthur of Connaught, who with Princess Arthur was the guest of honor, paid a tribute to the way in which the samurai spirit had overcome the almost insuperable difficulties of Japan after the earthquake.

The Earl of Balfour paid a high tribute to Japanese statemen and diplomatists. He said that he had strong hopes that the British Academy would receive a grant from Parliament in connection with its task of assisting in the restoration of the library of Tokio University.

Peking Dust

A Daily Chronicle Of The Capital's Gossip And News

(By Our Staff Correspondent)

Peking, Maay 30.—Pekingese poodles, presented to them by the Boy Emperor of China, are now in the possession of five British ladies who have just enjoyed the unique honor of being presented to the young man who still lives a semi-prisoner in a section of the Forbidden City which is still closed to the outside world.

Pekingese pups are famous the world over but there are few who can boast that their pets came from the Imperial kennels and were once the pets of the Boy Emperor. The five ladies were members of a party composed of Sir Arthur and Lady Leveson, Miss Pamela Leveson, Sir John and Lady Fowler and the Misses Fowler, Lieutenant-Commander Miney, and Mr. Hardy Jowett, who visited the Forbidden City with Mr. R. F. Johnston, noted British scholar who tutors the Boy Emperor, and were presented to the boy, still in the early twenties, who once held the proud title of 'Son of Heaven.' After a visit that lasted more than two hours the ladies of the party were presented with the famous dogs by the Emperor.

It is to be expected that in future dog shows to be held in England these dogs with their Imperial pedigrees, or their desendants, will walk off with all the blue ribbons at the show for there are very few dogs that have gone into the outside world direct from the Imperial kennels, and presented by the hands of the Boy Emperor himself. It will be something for the Pekingese to strut around about in days to come and provide many interesting anecdotes for their proud possessors. No information is available concerning the men—it was ever thus!—but it is assumed that they must be content with having shaken hands with a young man who, under different circumstances, would be the most powerful monarch in the world instead of a prisoner in his own palaces.

The Boy Emperor, it is reliably reported, is a democratic soul, and frets under being tied down to ancient traditions, and only a few days ago startled official Peking by jumping into a motor car with his Empress and a few close friends and officials and going for the first trip he has ever made outside of Peking. It was also the first time he had ever visited the Summer Palaces, built by his predecessors for just such weather as Peking is now suffering.

From the Pai Hai it was necessary for the Imperial party to cross the North lake by barges to the Summer Palaces and at least two barge-loads of foreigners were tipped off in time to jerk out their cameras and make snapshots of the barge. Whether any of the photographs turned out good or not is not known as the fortunate possessors of the cameras are keeping the silence of the Sphinx over their lucky 'shots.'

PUTNAM WEALE ON SECRET GOVERNMENT

Mr. B. Lenox Simpson, publisher of the Far Eastern Times in Peking, who, however, is far better known under his pen name of "Putnam Weale" because of the twenty or more volumes concerning China and things Chinese he has written, has just delivered an interesting lecture on "The Secret Government of China" before the students of Peking National Normal University, which contains some pertinent remarks well worth passing on. Mr. Simpson, in part, said:

"You will think this no doubt a very curious title for a lecture. Your suspicions may even be aroused as to whether I shall not attempt to disclose some extraordinary machinery which behind the scenes is the controlling factor in this country. I propose to make no sensational disclosures for the good reason that there are no secrets in China. What I wish to do today is to throw into relief some of the real factors in governing the country and to suggest some improvements which could be worked out without great trouble at once."

"The poet-philosopher Tagore has recently angered the great schools by preaching spiritualism versus materialism, rejecting the West because it seemed to him profitless. I was greatly interested in what he laid down because everything he says is a work of

NEW FRENCH PREMIER WINS SUPPORT OF SOCIALISTS

In Letter To Party He Announces Startling Program

TO STAY IN RUHR

Wants League Strengthended, Endorses Dawes Report

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, June 2.—A striking program is outlined by M. Herriot in a letter to the leader of the Socialist party. It embraces the immediate suppression of the decree laws, and the re-establishment of the match monopoly, both of which were passed by the Poincare Government, and also a general amnesty, except for evaders of military service and traitors. It further proposes the suppression of the Embassy at the Vatican, the application of the law regarding religious congregations, and the reduction of military service by organisation of the nation for defensive purposes.

M. Herriot, after describing his fiscal proposals and pro-Labor tendencies, favors strengthening and extending the role of the League of Nations, the Hague Tribunal and the International Labor Office, and resumption of normal relations with Russia. He unconditionally accents the Dawes report.

Notwithstanding his party's opposition over the Ruhr policy in the past, M. Herriot does not believe in the possibility of evacuating the Ruhr at present before the safeguards, laid down in that policy, are enforced and an international regime established.

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, June 2.—The Socialist Congress has rejected participation in the Government in the present circumstances.

F. Herriot's statement of program, however, was greeted with cheers, and the Executive of the Radical Socialist Party unanimously approved the program.

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, June 3.—The Congress of Unified Socialists has decided to support M. Herriot's Government.

MOSCOW ELATED OVER AGREEMENT, SEES BETTER TIMES

Trade Mission Soon To Be Sent To Peking, Says Journal

(Reuter's Service)

Moscow, June 3.—The official agency states that the news of the conclusion of the Russo-Chinese Agreement was received with great satisfaction.

According to the Pravda, M. Chicherin terms the establishment of normal relations with China an event of historic importance. He says that relations toward China cannot but be friendly.

The Political Correspondent of the Izvestia considers that the Agreement will strengthen China's international position and facilitate the stabilisation of her domestic situation. A Russian commercial mission will leave for Peking and Russian shipping in the Pacific will be increased. The correspondent refers to the possibility of negotiating with Siam, Mexico and Argentina.

The Commissar of Transport, M. Rudzutak, in the course of an interview said that the Agreement would lead to an increase of Russo-Chinese traffic with a consequent rise in the receipts of the Chinese Eastern Railway. Goods from East China would henceforth be sent direct via Ussuri and Vladivostok, not Port Arthur.

It is announced that M. Litvinoff will leave for London tomorrow.

LOCAL BRITONS IN OBSERVANCE OF KING'S BIRTHDAY

Parade And Reception At Consulate Feature Program

A colorful assembly of troops, police and civilians in the British Consulate grounds and an enthusiastic reception in the Consulate were the outstanding features in the celebration yesterday by Shanghai Britons of King George's birthday. The Union Jack floated from the flagstaffs of hongs and homes throughout the city and many of the British places of business were closed for the holiday.

Between 500 and 600 men were on parade at the Consulate yesterday morning, under command of Colonel W. F. L. Gordon, Commandant, S.V.C. The Volunteers marched from the Ewo foreshore under command of Maj. R. W. Davis and among other officers present were Maj. A. J. Stewart, Adjutant, and Lieut. A. G. Buyers, Assistant Adjutant. Besides the Volunteers, there were on parade a detachment from the British navy, the Municipal Band and about 225 Sikh police, under Capt. E. I. M. Barrett and Sub-Inspector Beale.

After three hearty cheers for the King, the parade was inspected by Consul-General Barton and then, while the band played "Rule Britannia" the units, headed by the naval contingent, marched past the saluting base, near the roadway.

The Consul-General's reception took place from 11:30 to 12:30 and was attended by a throng of British and other nationals. All the foreign consulates and military and naval offices were represented.

The toast to "The King" was proposed by the British Consul-General and was enthusiastically responded to, after which the assembly dispersed.

MACDONALD TO CONFER SOON WITH FRENCH PREMIER

Herriot Willing To Talk With English Leader As Soon As Possible

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 2.—With reference to reports in the French press that Mr. Ramsay MacDonald has written to M. Herriot, offering to confer with him in Paris on the international situation, and that M. Herriot has replied, pointing out that he has not yet been entrusted with the formation of a Cabinet, Reuter's Agency is informed that it is obvious that both sides desire an early settlement as soon as possible and that it is reasonable to assume that there has been some form of communication regarding a possible meeting of the two statesmen. It is further pointed out that Mr. MacDonald agrees to a suggestion that he should meet Signor Mussolini, but that it is impossible at present for Mr. MacDonald to absent himself from England long enough to go to Switzerland for that purpose. It is not so difficult, however, for him to meet the new French Premier in Paris.

New York To Issue Bonds For City Work

(Reuter's American Service)

New York, June 2.—It is announced that bids will be opened on June 3 for the City of New York issue of $137,400,000 4½ percent fifty-year Corporate Stock Notes and Short Term Serial Bonds, maturing in three to fifty years, to finance municipal improvements.

CORNER STONE OF NEW CHURCH TO BE LAID SUNDAY

Special Service On Site Of Community Church Planned

The corner stone of the new Community Church will be laid at a special service on Sunday afternoon, June 8th, at the 4:30 hour. The Governing Board of the church decided, at its regular monthly meeting last Monday, to dispense with the regular afternoon service which is usualy held in the Y. M. C. A and instead hold this special service on the church site on Avenue Petain. A committee was appointed to make full arrangements for the program. This advance notice is being given to the public so that they may make plans to attend.

It is interesting to note that just one year ago, or on June 8, 1923, the church launched out on its campaign for $65,000. Just about $52,000 were secured. On the basis of that received and in the belief that the friends of the church will assist again when called upon, the Governing Board, with the approval of the membership, went ahead with the actual construction plans. Mr. Joel Black was chosen to be the architect. The Tudor style of architecture was adopted. Ground was broken on April 4th of this year, and the contractor, Wang Chin Kee, assures the members of the church that the building will be ready for use before Christmas, 1924.

The first unit, which is now being constructed, will contain a hall, to seat 650, temporary quarters for the pastor, and five or six Sunday School rooms. The building will contain a kitchen, thus making the large hall adaptable for church dinners; showers for those who will use the tennis courts; a choir loft to accommodate 45 voices; and platform arrangements suitable for the giving of the amateur theatrical productions of the American School. The church is seeking through its building equipment to live up to its name, and be in truth a Community church.

WANTS CHINA TO GIVE GUARANTEE ON TRADEMARKS

Conservative Would Have Bargain In Return For Indemnity Cancelation

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 2.—In the House of Commons today, Mr. Samuel Samuel (Conservative) suggested postponement of the second reading of the Chinese Indemnity Bill until the Chinese Government altered the conditions of their Trade Marks Bill so as to protect British manufacturers and traders against having trade marks, which they have been using for a number of years, fraudulently taken away.

Mr. Ramsay MacDonald said that it was not desirable to connect the trade marks question with the very different matter of the China Indemnity Bill.

Mr. Samuel asked if the Prime Minister had any list of applications of Chinese, Japanese and German firms for registration of British trade marks and if it were possible to suspend the Indemnity Bill in order to introduce a bill whereby the money could be applied to compensate British manufacturers and merchants whose trade marks were taken away.

The Premier replied that he thought it far more desirable that, in regard to the Trade Marks Law, we should conduct the negotiations on the merits of the case itself and not mix it up with another act of ours, which, he hoped, would be accepted by China as an act of grace rather than as the result of a bargain.

New Helicopter Record Established

M. Pescara, French airman, has set a new world's record for sustained helicopter flight. At Issy-les-Moulineaux Pascara kept his machine in vertical flight for 300 yards, beating the former record by 650 yards. The upper picture shows the queer airplane in flight, while the lower shows the aviator.

Americans Will Greet Fliers At Ball Tonight

The greater part of the American community in Shanghai is expected to greet the American 'round-the-world aviators at the American Charity Ball at "Marble Hall," Mr. E. S. Kadoorie's home, tonight.

The flyers who reached Shanghai today will attend their first public function in Shanghai at the ball which, happily, occurs coincidently with triumphal arrival after their trans-Pacific flight.

All preparations for the ball have been completed and the committee is jubilant over its assured success. More than 1,000 tickets had been sold yesterday with demands for more still coming in.

A few additional numbers have been added to the program and the Cafe Chantant promises to be a drawing card in itself, as the idea of vaudeville, interspersed with dancing, is making a strong appeal.

Major Hilton-Johnson, Deputy Police Commissioner, and Mr. O. M. Springfield, assistant commissioner, in charge of traffic, have promised every aid and facility to guests, arriving and departing in motor cars. Special bicycle policemen and runners will be placed at strategic points to direct traffic. Entrance will be from the Great Western Road gate and exits from the Bubbling Well Road gate. Mr. Kadoorie has made special arrangements personally for five large searchlights which will be placed at intervals about the grounds so that the full strength of their rays will be focussed on a large American flag that will be flown from the house. The illuminated flag will serve as a guide to arriving guests as it can be seen from some distance.

COMPRADORE IS GIVEN JUDGMENT IN U. S. COURT

Judge Purdy Holds For Complainant In Suit For $2,397

In the United States Court for China, yesterday, before Judge Milton D. Purdy, the case was heard in which Tong Jock Hing, sued A. Teodoro, trading as the Philippine American Import and Export Co. to recover $2,397.91 money advanced to the defendants, and Tls. 300 salary for two months' service as compradore for the defendants. The latter sued out a set off of Tls. 5,000 claiming that they had suffered damage as a result of the breach of the compradore agreement by the plaintiff in failing to advance monies sufficient to enable the company to undertake certain contracts.

Dr. H. C. Mei appeared for the plaintiff and Mr. W. Y. Char for the defendant.

As a result of the hearing which lasted all day the court found in favor of the plaintiff on the claim and claim for a set-off, giving judgment for plaintiff in the sums of $2,397.91 and Tls. 150.

CONSULATE REQUESTED TO PLAN FOR THEIR COMING

Now Prepared For Hop Over Sea From Japan

ALL READY HERE

Captain Eisler And Staff To Keep River Clear Of Craft

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Kagoshima, June 3.—It is expected that the American fliers will leave for Shanghai tomorrow.

With Shanghai in feverish expectation of their arrival, pilots of the three American around-the-world airplanes sent an official message yesterday afternoon to United States Consul-General Edwin S. Cunningham that they would hop off from Kagoshima, Japan, on the flight to Shanghai at 6 o'clock this morning. This, it is believed by local officials in charge of arrangements for the reception of the planes, should bring them to the landing course on the Whangpoo above Black Point by 11 o'clock, unless adverse weather conditions or some unforeseen eventuality retards them in their journey.

The hope held out Monday night that the three giant air cruisers would be in Shanghai before noon yesterday was dismissed early yesterday morning when an official message was received by the consulate from the commander of the United States destroyer flotilla which is stretched across the China Sea, that the air pilots had decided to remain over an extra day in Kagoshima in order to make necessary repairs to their machines and get them in better condition for the crossing to China. This first message stated that the aviators would probably attempt the flight to Shanghai this morning.

Later, in the afternoon, a second message was received by the consulate, which carried the definite information that, weather permitting, the start would be made at 6 o'clock this morning. It is estimated that the flight to Shanghai will take approximately five hours. Consequently, it is estimated that the three planes will make their appearance in the vicinity of Black Point at about 11 o'clock.

INSPECT LANDING SITE

Final inspection of the preparations made here for the reception of the aviators has convinced local officials that everything possible has been done to insure their safety in the hop across from Japan and in landing at Black Point. The American destroyer flotilla has been stretched across the China Sea since last Saturday, and the vessels will be so stationed when the flight begins that should they be called upon to go to the aid of any of the planes, it will be but a question of a brief space of time before they reach them.

For the guidence of the aviators, complete, detailed maps showing the vicinity of Shanghai and the stretch of river from the coast up, were forwarded to Japan some time ago and are now in their hands. In addition, detailed weather reports have been cabled daily from the Siccawei observatory.

It is believed that the three planes will follow the Yangtsze up from its mouth and then turn in over the Whangpoo. The landing place, selected some time ago by Lieut. Lawton and laid out and prepared by Captain W. I. Eisler, representative of American Lloyd's, who is in charge of local preparations for the aviators, is a stretch of water some two miles in length, from the trestle work near Shanghai Baptist College, to the Standard Oil installation.

ALL SHIPPING WARNED

The possible menace of interference by sampans or other shipping, will, it is believed, be completely avoided, as Capt. Eisler has the promise of the full co-operation of the harbormaster.

Vienna Assassin Says He Aimed At Relief For Masses

(Reuter's Service)

Vienna, June 3.—The Chancellor's condition is unchanged. Jarowek is reported to have made a confession, in which he says that he had repeatedly heard that the Chancellor was responsible for the misery of the great masses of the people, and therefore he had long ago resolved to remove him. He denies that he had any accomplices. He admits that he belongs to a Social-Democrat organisation, but says that he has long abandoned political activities.

M. Bauer, the leader of the Social Democrats, in the course of a speech yesterday, strongly condemned the attack, as does the whole Vienna press. Several papers urge more moderate conduct of political hostilities.

Notices requesting that this stretch of the water be kept clear during the time set for the arrival of the aviators, have already been published, and a strict patrol will be kept this morning to insure that these instructions are carried out.

Capt. Eisler intends to leave for Black Point aboard his launch, the Record I, early this morning, in order that he may be on hand well before the scheduled time of arrival. He will be accompanied by newspapermen and motion picture photographers who will take films showing the arrival of the planes.

Immediately upon their alighting, the aviators will be taken aboard Capt. Eisler's launch and brought up the river. Rooms have been engaged for them at the Astor House. Entertainment plans are being held in abeyance, as everything will be dependent upon their wishes and the duration of their stay in Shanghai. However, it is hoped that a reception may be arranged at the Columbia Country Club at which members of the American Community will be given the opportunity to meet them.

The three planes will be moored to buoys, which have been placed near the Standard Oil Wharf on the Pootung side. The U. S. S. Pigeon will be berthed so that its searchlight will play on the planes throughout the night, and a naval guard will stand watch to see that there is no interference with the planes.

(Eastern News Agency)

Tokio, June 3.—A despatch from Kagoshima of today's date says that the American fliers, who were expected to start this morning for Shanghai by way of Nagasaki, have decided to postpone their flight in order to repair their machines. It is expected that they will hop off early tomorrow morning.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Pyongyang, June 3.—Captain d'Oisy arrived here at 8.30 this morning.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Mukden, June 3.—Captain d'Oisy departed this morning at five o'clock. In spite of the early hour, many Chinese and foreigners were present, including the Marshal's son, General Chang, who accompanied Captain d'Oisy part of the way in a separate aeroplane. A friend presented the airman with a very life-like black cat, which he took along as a mascot.

MISS HABER TO GIVE RECITALS AT ASTOR HOUSE

Charming Entertainer Returns To Shanghai After Stay In New York

Two recitals will be given next week at the Astor House by Eleanor Haber, charming elocutionist, who, on the occasion of her previous appearances in Shanghai a year or so ago, won a host of friends through her clever impersonations. The recitals next week will take place on Tuesday and Thursday evenings at 9.30 o'clock and each will be followed by dancing.

Miss Haber has just returned to the Orient after spending the winter in study in New York, and has developed a distinctly new and amusing repertoire of sketches and monologue. Among the numbers which she will present will be "A Woman in a Shoe Shop," "In An Art Gallery," "A Game of Bridge" and "A Game of Mah-jongg" (both Shanghai fashion); "A Children's Party," recording events and conversation at a typical children's Christmas party; "On the Western Plains," a dramatic episode, which has been very highly praised by the New York Herald; "In a Restaurant," impersonations of girls just removed from the ghetto class and "The Culture Class," a scene in a women's physical culture and beauty establishment.

Miss Haber, on the occasion of her previous stay in Shanghai, entertained at the British Country Club and the Columbia Country Club. Following her recitals here, she will go on to England by way of Suez, stopping off en route at various places. At Hongkong, Miss Haber last year was a guest at Government House, and Sir Reginald Stubbs has promised to write a new monologue for her.

SCIENTIFIC PARTY PASSING THROUGH ON EXPEDITION

Will Visit Java And Other Countries To Gather Data

Bound for Java, the Celibes and several little known territories in the Eastern tropical seas, a party of eighteen men, one woman and a little girl is passing through Shanghai on the Dollar liner President Van Buren. The expedition is known as the Winther research Expedition and its purpose is general research work, collection of educational data, specimens the making of motion pictures and a search for traces of prehistoric man.

The party is banked by Los Angeles financiers and expects to be out from eight months to a year. It is headed by Baron Carl P. Winther—whose title is honorary, he being an American citizen—and includes also the Baroness and their little daughter, who is to be the expedition's mascot and will probably travel into parts of the world where no other white child has ever been seen.

Among the camera-men is Mr. Pierre Collings, whose arrival in Shanghai at the time the American army fliers are due is in the nature of a coincidence. When the fliers hopped-off from Los Angeles Mr. Collings followed them in a convoying plane as far as Seattle, making motion pictures of the flight. He hopes to take a few more feet of film on the same subject here today.

The members of the party include: Baron and Baroness Winther, Miss Jane Lilly Winther, Capt. Walter Fiechter, Capt. Wm. Bals, Capt. Robt. Randolph, Messrs. Pierre Collings, F. E. Jones, T. E. Johnson, R. L. Jones, T. E. Richards, Chas. Fogelquist, Ben N. Newman, A. E. Von Linden, Hans de Muth, William Broeg, Claude Banta, Elmer Howe and C. N. Colgate.

art, very illuminating to listen to and very beautifully spoken. But so far as real solutions are concerned he contributed nothing, for the very good reason that politics are a special study, related more to economics than to the arts. An artist can contribute little because the duty of an artist is to transport men from their troubles to a fairy world. But solutions to everyday problems are not found that way."

"The secret government of China is commonsense as expressed in family, guild and village, and is based on custom. It is founded on the theory of responsibility. Responsible government in this country commences with the smallest group and there is therefore a remarkable resemblance in China to the secret government in England, which is really the old Anglo-Saxon Common Law derived from the customs of the people when they led a purely village life and had no one to protect them or police them but themselves. The secret of their self-confidence is this, and I believe this is also the secret in China as well. The later forms, such as parliamentary government, are additions."

"Now if this is accurate what is wanted in China today is a complete study of the methods the people of England adopted in the Eighteenth century when industrialism and new inventions commenced to break-up the old society. Let me give a few illustrations. The hsien which is equivalent to the English county should become the authority in all such matters as roads and should be given certain powers of taxation on the toll-gate roads. As the people would be taxing themselves and their transport they would have to bring such taxation into time with their own capacity to pay. If every hsien had a modern toll-gate road running to the nearest railway, it would speed up production and lead to growth of mechanical transport.

"The products of each hsien ought to be listed and followed to their destination, with all the charges and troubles that beset them. Hsien histories exist, i. e., county histories for every hsien in China. They should be followed today by the Hsien self-governing record books in which all the data affecting the hsien would find a place.

"The first means of effecting improvement is to improve contact and to do away with barriers. Regulations regarding small improvements such as cart-wheel tyres are more important than any high-sounding principles."

"Village life was the important thing in a vast country of villages and how to bring this village life into closer relations with the cities, the coast and the railways was highly important, much more important than the Constitution as the villages governed China. There should be no discouragement but a better realisation that the strength of the country is undiminished. How to harness the village strength to the outward semblance of China, which foreigners alone knew, should be the concern of the older students and the young professors who could not employ their holidays better than making first hand studies of the hsien."

At the conclusion of the address, Mr. Fan Yuan-lien made an analysis of the ideas expressed, and said that the suggestion regarding a study of Eighteenth Century Europe was highly valuable and would be acted upon.

PHOTOGRAPHIC SOCIETY HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

Dr. N. Hay Bolton Re-elected President; Prizes Awarded

Dr. N. Hay Bolton was re-elected president of the Photographic Society of Shanghai at the annual general meeting held yesterday. Other officers chosen by the society were: Mr. A. E. C. Hindson and Mr. F. Large, vice-presidents; Mr. Kendal Ward, secretary and treasurer. Committee members chosen were: Mr. B. T. Prideaux, assistant secretary, Mr. Gutierrez, lanternist, and Messrs. Dent, Hummel, Vanderberg, Chatel, Morita, Mishin, Westbrook and Godby.

The chairman, in his speech, reviewed the work of the past year. The society had held two successful exhibitions. Numerous lectures and demonstrations were held during the winter at which the attendance had been fairly good. The most flourishing branch of the society was the portfolio section, whose members were interested, amused, and, thanks to Mr. Mennie's able criticisms, instructed.

Following the adoption of the reports and accounts, an alteration in the rules was adopted making a member's subscription include his wife. A further alteration was voted to increase the size of the committee as might seem desirable.

Gold medal for best exhibit, Mr. R. V. Dent.

Miscellaneous, Class A, 1st prize, Mr. R. V. Dent; 2nd prize, C. V. Mishin; Honorable mention, Mr. J. Frank Jones, Dr. N. Hay Bolton.

Genre, Class A, 1st prize, Dr. N. Hay Bolton; 2nd prize, Mr. R. V. Dent; Honorable mention, Messrs. A. C. Godby, P. T. Prideaux and J. Frank Jones.

Lantern Slides or Transparencies, Class A, 1st prize, Mr. L. M. Berthet, 2nd prize, Mr. T. Kobayashi.

Mr. Helder, president of the Batavian Photographic Society, was an interested visitor at the meeting, and gave the members some details of his photographic experiences in Batavia.

AMERICAN PLANS HANKOW-SHANGHAI AIR FREIGHT LINE

Walter D. Bonner, Ex-Sun Yat-sen Man, Has Proposition

Yokohama, May 25.—The Federated Corporation of Los Angeles will operate a private airplane service between Hankow and Shanghai beginning this fall, according to the announcement of Mr. Walter D. Bonner, President of the Company, who is a passenger on the steamer President Madison which sailed from here yesterday bound for Seattle.

This flying boat service will make the trip between the two cities in about seven hours, Mr. Bonner said, and will be used for rapid transit business between the Hankow and Shanghai branches of the Corporation. It will not be a passenger line and will be used merely for the convenience of the company operating the planes. In addition to a general exporting and importing business, the Federated Corporation proposes to have a number of oil filling stations.

Mr. Bonner is an experienced flier himself and served two years as an officer in the United States naval flying corps. The first year he was stationed in the United States and the second year he was detailed aboard war cruisers in the submarine zones in the anti-submarine defense service.

In 1920 the young aviator came to China with $500,000 worth of planes and 20 pilots and mechanics to head what he understood was to be a commercial airplane service in Macao under the management of Mr. C. E. W. Ricow.

"The venture proved to be military rather than commercial so I severed my connections with the organisation," Mr. Bonner said.

The flier then became the director-general of aviation for Dr. Sun Yat-Sen and served in that capacity during 1920 and 1921.

When he organised the present company of which he is the head, Mr. Bonner gave up flying as a commercial occupation, but still takes an occasional trip in the air for pleasure.

The three planes which he expects to bring from the United States will be regulation size flying boats such as those used by the United States Government and will be capable of carrying 16 persons. When he returns to the Orient in about four months, he will bring with him pilots and mechanics to operate the planes.

Scot Wins Bout For The Featherweight Title Of Britain

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 3.—In a contest for the Featherweight Boxing Championship of Great Britain at Holland Park Hall tonight George Mackenzie of Leith beat Harry Leach of Doncaster on points.

Leach, who is only eighteen, outspeeded Mckenzie in the early rounds and got home several lightning right leads. For a time he out-boxed his opponent, and at the half-way stage led well on points. After this, however, the Scotsman improved, frequently landing left jabs and hooks to the head and body. In the last few rounds Leach tired, and Mackenzie, fighting hard to the end, won by a narrow margin.

(Reuter's American Service)

Philadelphia, June 2.—In a ten-round bout here today Micky Walker successfully defended the world's welterweight boxing title, beating Lew Tendler on points.

Kiangsi Anti Opium Body Denounces Governor As Evil, Greedy Extortionist

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, May 31.—Vow taken by the Kiangsi Anti-Opium Committee in Peking before Spirits of Patriotic Ancestors of Kiangsi:

"Today, May 25, of the 13th year of the Republic of China we, the Kiangsi Anti-Opium Committee, under the leadership of our most respectful and humble Ting Shan (Senator Fu) unite to make offerings with true hearts and determination, together with incense and libations, to the partiotic Spirits of our province of Kiangsi for the purpose of clearing the land of the pernicious persons who encourage opium evils, which harm the people of our province. We are conscious that your merits are brilliant and that you sacrificed your bodies for righteousness and that that is why you live with us as long as the mountains are in being. During this critical state of our country whilst there is much to be readjusted. It is much to be regretted that Tsai in our province has done little to help us, but has made extortions with a view to enriching himself. He has nothing in his mind but gold, which is everything to him. To the welfare of the people he has never given a thought. His subordinates likewise have this accursed appetite for gold. In our province soldiers as well as bandits prevail everywhere. In our province Tsai bribes the Members of the Provincial Assembly and extorts excessive taxes from the poor people. What is even more to be regretted is that an opium monopoly has recently been established by him. We are conscious of the fact that various sufferings are engendered by him and unless this chief culprit is removed there will be no hope for our province of Kiangsi. We feel it a duty to rise against this evil enemy of our province. We display our hearts before you and take oath to maintain righteousness with faithful hearts. We vow to fight to the end without neglecting this duty, and we vow not to receive bribes offered with the object of making us forsake our sacred cause. You who are above us will not fail to read our hearts and observe our every action."

Gallopers Retrieve Game That All Thought Lost

Thatch, Harry Kingman And Two Taylors Stage Hitfest In Final Session; Thatch Elected Captain

By Westa

Except for Harry Kingman and Buck Taylor the new crop of Gallopers would have been rammed and sunk yesterday by the M. B. K's, Honorable Japanese base ballers. Hon. Tokios were two runs ahead when Herby's hopefulls came to bat in the final session and when Bullard, first man up, perished on a double steal, pitcher to catcher to umpire, it looked bad, or even worse than that.

At that critical moment Mr. J. Thatch, Kiukiang Road's most distinguished banker, came to the rescue with some liquid assets in the shape of a scorching single over second.

The skipper was next up, and Harry, peering through the gloaming toward Jerry at first, went through a quick and very logical mental process. In the gathering twilight Jerry's legs looked shorter than ever to Harry, and Heaven knows they are short enough, even in broad daylight. So Harry quickly calculated that the only way to get Jerry around was to slam one into the rhubarbs, and accordingly he slammed one there.

JERRY SCORES

Away out over the centerfielder's head it traveled, so far that Jerry loped home—if by any stretch of the imagination you can picture Jerry loping—without the least difficulty. Harry could have made the circuit himself on the wallop, but there was only one out at the time so he decided not to take the chance of tossing away the tying run.

Hudford Taylor then obliged with a handsome blow to center that scored Harry and while the bookkeepers were chalking this tally on the right side of the ledger Hudford stole second.

It was then up to Buck, and Buck came through like a doting mamma sending her little rah rah a Christmas package, which of course enabled Hudford to cash the winning run. That ended the old ball game.

All this was a great surprise to the faithful, who had given the game up as lost, and a great shock to the Japanese, who were convinced that at last they were going to win a game from the Gallopers. Ueda, their pitcher, had turned in a very workmanlike performance up to the seventh, and as his mates had supported him nicely, both in the field and at bat, they had every reason to hope for a win.

THATCH IS CAPTAIN

Following the game the Gallopers held an executive session in the club house at which they elected Jerry Thatch captain for this season. Jerry was the unanimous choice of his mates for the job and there is no doubt that he will fill the post capably. There isn't much of Jerry, but what there is is so highly refined, and distilled, and sorted and classified and reduced to essence that the boys are all whoopingly certain that he will lead the team through the best season it ever had. Jerry is playing short this year in place of Freddy Bills, and the way he has flashed thus far is causing the ol' timers to begin to think that we aren't going to miss Freddy so much after all. With Bullard at third and Jerry at short the infield looks like the w.k. stone wall. The box score:

SPUD MURPHY IS AMERICAN CLUB BILLIARD CHAMP

He Beats Julius Rosenfeld, Due To Some Unusual Factors

D. W. Murphy, known as Spud to his friends, won the American Club Handicap last night when he defeated Julius Rosenfeld somewhat easily and unexpectedly. It was a great match, with the old 'un playing a steady game and occasionally pulling off a brilliant shot. Julius owed Murphy 50 points in 250 and was a hot favorite. Murphy won by a wide margin over and above his handicap, and pulled a big surprise.

The downfall of Julius is attributable to three distinct reasons viz the advent of Stevenson, Rissole Levvy's book, and his own poor play.

Analysing these reasons we find that Julius having closely observed how Stevenson made his shot tried to change his stance, cue grip, and play his shots in the Stevensonian way with the result that he could neither make the shots in the new way nor yet in his own original style.

Next we come to Rissole Levvy and his influence on Julius' game. Rissole, a prominent amateur billiardist in London, once wrote a book entitled "what I know about Billiards," four chapters of which were devoted to the subject of potting the white. Julius followed Rissole's advice on this phase of Billiards with poor results to himself, and Murphy gave a far better rendering on this fine point. Had Julius heard Stevensons comment on Rissole's advice to amateurs it is doubtful if Julius would have followed this exponents ideas so closely.

The third reason for Julius' disappointing display as aforementioned was his own poor play which cannot be analysed. The game might have had a different ending if Harry Gibson had refereed the game and called his usual interval in the midst of Spud's high breath.

As to Murphy, let it be said that he was trained by Herby Gallop and Bob Gregg, who as trainers of potential champions are unbeatable. Both trainers use wide tips and heavy cues. Gallop likes 'em about 24 oz and Bob has a 26 ounce horse shoe in the butt of his cue which gives him the extraordinary results he achieves and which occasionally brings even a blush to his jovial face.

Anyway with two such players to train Murphy and advise him, the result was no great surprise to Murphy's friends, and his victory was hailed with great acclamation and the club supply of Pommery soon ran out in drinking to the health and success of Mr. Murphy.

The event will be further celebrated at a later date, prior to Mr. Murphys departure for home, when a Billiard dinner will be given in his honor and when Meyer Shibbeth will lecture on the Psyology of getting your opponents goat.

TODAY'S DERBY TO BE MOST OPEN RACE IN YEARS

Diophon Rules Favorite But The Talent Is Rather Upset

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 2.—Everything points to a very interesting Derby. It will certainly be the most open in many years. The consensus of opinion is that anything may win. The tipsters mostly agree to differ.

Meanwhile, the Aga Khan's Diophon, which has shown consistently good form and has done well in training since it won the Two Thousand Guineas, has been installed as favorite.

Neither the Aga Khan nor Lord Astor, who are doubly represented, intends making any declaration to win, so that Diophon and Salmon Trout and St. Germans and Bright Knight will run on their merits.

The field includes a couple of French horses, Optimist II. and Thunder Cloud II. both of which have arrived in England.

Archibald rode Knight of the Garter this morning for a couple of six-furlong gallops. His Majesty's colt is moving freely. His leg is no worse and it has been definitely decided that he will run on Wednesday.

His Majesty will be present at Epsom throughout the meeting.

Speaking at a Press Club lunch today, the Earl of Derby asserted that "with a field of 31 for the Derby and a torrential rain falling I should put the names in a hat, draw one out and back it."

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 2.—Eaglestone was scratched from the Derby at five o'clock on Saturday evening. Guizil at 10 on Saturday night and Bob Flint and Henri at nine this morning.

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 3.—It is reported from Newmarket that Knight of the Garter's leg is worse this morning, and it has therefore been decided that he will not run in the Derby.

His Majesty's Resinato has left for Epsom.

(Reuter's Service)

London. June 2.—Betting on the Derby is as follows:

6 to 1 Diophon.
8 to 1 Tom Pinch.
100 to 9 Sansovino and St. Germans.

18 to 1 Woodend.
22 to 1 Hurstwood and Salmon Trout.
25 to 1 Dawson City and Parmenio (taken and offered).
33 to 1 Spalpeen (offered).
40 to 1 Tipper and Optimist II (taken and offered).
40 to 1 Polyphontes and Defiance (offered).
50 to 1 Knight of the Garter (taken and offered).
50 to 1 Obliterate (offered).
66 to 1 Donzelon (taken and offered).

Y.M.C.A. PLEDGES TO AID IN FIGHT AGAINST OPIUM

Hangchow Conference Discusses Important Questions On Closing Day

(China Press Correspondence)

Hangchow, June 2.—The Conference of Y.M.C.A. Secretaries here in its closing day has discussed some of the most important questions of its entire session. The Conference agreed unanimously to back the National Christian Council and other agencies in their fight against opium and the many other social evils which are so seriously affecting the life of the nation today. The question of broadening the program is forcing itself upon the movement in every section of the country and this also received attention.

The principle that has guided the Association in the past is that of occupying the larger political and business centers of the country. Now it is facing the problem of expanding also into the secondary cities. In addition to this, however, the question of opening work for special groups such as soldiers and industrial workers is forcing itself on the movement also.

Some of the principles of expansion agreed upon call for intensive development as well as the occupation of new fields and the reaching of new classes. The Commission on Policy of Expansion agreed that the Y.M.C.A.'s first responsibility is to its present membership, to serve them and enlist them in service, but looking to the great unoccupied field, it decided that a reorganisation of the national forces into Regional Committees for closer supervision must be effected if the movement is to adequately respond to the great number of invitations to occupy new centers which is on its waiting list.

Broadening Of Program

We believe in a four-fold program as essential in the development of Christian manhood, and each Association, large or small, shall develop such program for its membership and enlist them in promoting it in the community.

Associations should from the beginning assume that the young men from the commercial classes, officials, students and boys are a part of its field. Work for women and girls should not be undertaken except under special circumstances and only for a limited time.

Extension into new groups not in our present membership such as students, soldiers, industrial, etc.

Experiments in new groups such as army work in a few centers where conditions are most favorable where the Associations have adequate resources in volunteer workers, staff and money.

That each Association study its field, and in view of the conditions therein revealed decide upon and inaugurage certain evils that are destroying the life of our young men and boys, such as opium, prostitution, gambling and economic oppression, and

A few lines of constructive city-wide activities that will produce a more Christian society, such as Pupular Education, Community programs for and by boys and students.

That we here and now decide that we as a movement will heartily and actively enter into the anti-opium campaign as being planned by the National Christian Council for this coming autumn.

Extension into other sections of a city:

Without equipment—As rapidly as full or part time secretaries or experienced volunteer workers are available to work through existing institutions.

With building and equipment.—When present staff, program and support are reasonably adequate for work already undertaken. And when the section in question cannot be satisfactorily served by existing equipment.

Regional Organisation.—Suggested Territorial Divisions: Manchuria, North China (Shantung, Chihli, Shansi), East (Kiangse, Chekiang, Anhwei, Kiangsi), Central (Honan, Hunan, Hupei, Shensi, Fukien, South China (Kwangtung, Kwangsi, Yunnan), West China (Szechuen).

BOBBIE AND HIS PA

BY Wm. F. KIRK

Pa, I sed to my dad last nite, wich state do you have to live in to be a states-man? I sed.

Pa laffed. Thare isent any such animile nowdays as a states man, Bobbie sed Pa. Henry Clay was one & Dan Webster was one & Patrick Henry was one & Abe Linkum was a hundred statesmen in one, Bobbie, sed Pa, but we have no statesmen now, Bobbie.

We have got congriss-men, aint we? sed me to Pa.

Yes, sed Pa, we have got them good & plenty, sed Pa. Thay dident think we wud git them, but we got them. The result, Bobbie, sed Pa, is a grate wave of sadness sweaping over this glorious nashun.

Yes, sed Ma, thanks to wimmen puri-fying politicks, sed Ma, a lot of crooks has been X-posed & thare is a flood of indigg-nashun all up & down the land, sed Ma. Them crooks now must reelize that thare is a flood of anger, sed Ma.

Thay knew thare was such a flood, sed Pa, & thay tried to pour oil on it, sed Pa, but it dident seem to do any good. I am glad I am not a congriss-man, sed Pa. The nabors say enuff about me the way it is, sed Pa.

The wurld wud be better off if wimmen held the offices, sed Ma. You cud nevver bribe a woman.

Thare is sum men that you cud nevver bribe eether, sed Pa. Munny wud have no power oaver me, for instance, sed Pa.

Or me, sed Ma.

I doant know about that, sed Pa. I notis that wen I give you lots of munny you are moar sunnier tempered, sed Pa.

How silly, sed Ma. Munny means so little to me.

Pa laffed. Did you heer that, Bobbie, sed Pa.

I doant think Ma cairs much for munny, I sed. If Ma liked munny she wuddent lock it up in a bank, I sed. But I like munny, tho, I sed. Have you got sum loose munny around, Pa? I sed.

Thare isent much loose munny nowdays, Bobbie, sed Pa. It I know ware thare is any loose money I go after it, Bobbie, sed Pa. & wen I git it I keap it, sed Pa, for thare is sum long, hard winters cumming, Bobbie, Pa sed. About the only peepul that gets munny eesy nowadays, Bobbie, sed Pa, is them statesmen which you have been asking me about.

I guess I will be a statesman wen I grow up, I sed. Thay can git big chunks of munny like bank bergu-lars does, I sed, & thay doant have to git shot like bergu-lars, I sed.

No, Bobbie, sed Pa, but eeven if thay was shot thay wud be better off than sum of the fokes in Washington. A ded bergu-lar is better than a live con-grissman, sed Pa, if the live con-grissman is crooked too, sed Pa. In the words of Milton, the blind song riter, sed Pa.

Aint it quear & aint it funny
What sum fokes will do for munny?

Freaks Of Nature

The willet is a bird whose example might well be followed by human beings. Shortly after a willet takes a mate it changes from a noisy, prattling bird to a docile creature that makes no noise at all. Even more surprising is the fact that the female is just as quiet. This apparent peace and harmony is not due to a lack of quarrels, but to a safety of the little willets. The wise parents know that noise would attract hungry prowlers to the nest where the young ones are hiding.

OLD BILL'S Adventures in America

by Bruce Bairnsfather

What Is This?

THOSE who simply go to boxing bouts when they occur, and merely see the fight, miss the most fascinating side of the game altogether. The fights lasts anything from a minute up to an hour, and then it's all over and you've paid your money. You can get far more value and amusement cheaper by reading about the fight before it comes off. This engaging occupation can cover a year or more. It is as well to subscribe to a paper for a couple of years and read it regularly every day so that no move is missed. I cannot quite remember now how many years Dempsey has been just about to fight Wills. But all I know is that—out of the 365 days—he is going to fight him in 182½ daily paragraphs, and he is not going to in the other 182½.

The day that you read that contracts have been signed and that an enormous stadium is being built outside the twelve-mile limit is the day before the personal word comes from Dempsey that he never has and never will contemplate fighting Wills.

Bill and I have got a game now—we call it "Hunt the Boxer." We take in all the newspapers we can collect and cut out the boxing news. All the headings that go:

"Dempsey - Wills Match Fixed—Rickard Signs Contract," we place in one pile, and all the ones that read:

"Wills Finally Abandons Match with Dempsey," we place in another pile.

We then shuffle and deal. It's a difficult game; something like Mah Jongg. The man whose ultimate pile of notices postpones the match till 1929, and conclusively shows that a studium will never be built and that Patagonia is the place where the fight, if any, will not be, wins!

When Bill and I saw Dempsey send a consignment of Firpo back to the Argentine we couldn't believe our eyes.

"Are they really fighting?" said Bill to me as he watched.

"Why, sure, Bill. Why?"

"And is that Dempsey?"

"Yes."

"And that feller lying down, is that Firpo?"

"Yes, of course."

"Well, I go to H——!"

"Why, Bill, there it is, right enough. They are there, all right. You can see Dempsey, anyway, but we get a rotten view of the floor from here for anything more."

* * * * * * *

"It's all over! Come along, Bill; come along home and start reading about who Dempsey will fight next. When Rickard reads his fairy tales at night before going to sleep I expect he translates that phrase 'Castles in the air' to 'Stadiums in the ether.' There is as much speculative literature written about boxing as there is about the 'Hereafter' and advance booking for souls!"

Wedding

FORDE—HUTCHISON

The wedding took place at Union Church yesterday afternoon of Miss Cathering Ferguson Arthur Hutchison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Hutchison of Shanghai, and Mr. Frank Hubert Forde, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Forde, of Dublin. The church was prettily decorated for the occasion and the ceremony was witnessed by a large number of friends of the young couple. The Rev. A. N. Rowland officiated.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a charming gown of white georgette and silver lace, with white satin train and a net lace veil. Miss Jess McGeachie, as bridesmaid, wore salmon pink georgette, with a Leghorne hat trimmed with pink roses.

Mr. T. R. Weeks acted as best man and Messrs. C. W. Porter, B. W. Gale and A. E. Collins as ushers. Masters Lewis, David and James Porter, dressed in while silk and carrying silver crooks, acted as pages. The church ceremony followed a civil service held at the British Consulate-General, at which Consul-General Barton officiated.

Following the wedding a reception was held at 11 Jinkee Road, the home of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Forde will spend their honeymoon in Manila.

Shantung Still Lagging On Roadway Improvement

(China Press Correspondence)

Ichowfu, May 26.—There is little wonder that the people of Lin Yi county frequently refer to the halcyon days of the early part of the Tsing dynasty and hope that the wheel of fortune will soon turn and bring a return of the days of peace and prosperity.

Shantung has long been noted for its conservatism. In recent years several efforts have been made to improve the roads leading from this city to the railroad at Yinsien some sixty miles away. Two years ago the local magistrate posted notices that each village bordering the road was responsible for a certain section and if his plan had been followed excellent results would have been obtained.

To carry out any such scheme the assistance of the military authorities is necessary, but our official did not see fit to do his part in seeing that the villages did their share of the work. Recently we have asked him if he would be willing to help in putting some such scheme across, but he very politely refused saying that the people were not willing to have good roads and that if he helped in the matter he would be complained of in Tsinan and might lose his position. From what we can see it is the official himself who is unwilling to have the roads and not the people. If he had the well being and prosperity of the citizens under his care as much in heart as the military official to the east and south of us we would long ago have had roads similar to those General Bei Baoshan has given the people of north eastern Kiangsu.

A few days ago I went over to Haichow in my car. On this end of the line stones are frequently placed so that we must stop and clear the road before proceeding; clods of earth and debris of various sorts is thrown at us, and we have to keep our eyes strictly to business to avoid the holes which farmers dig right on the edge of the road to keep pedestrians from walking on the wheat. Frequently the land on the two sides of the road is owned by different men. When one man digs such a hole the other to protect his property thinks he must do the same, and the result often is a road so narrow that carts cannot pass. This necessitates driving through the wheat and when we do so remarks are made which are not exactly complimentary.

We very much prefer to drive on the road if the width is sufficient, but in a number of places carts have to drive through the fields. We have spoken to the official about these things and he has asked for the names of villages near which such affairs take place, but so far as we can see nothing has been done. How different things are as soon as we cross the line into Kiangsu. Here General Bei has made splendid roads on which two cars can easily pass at any point. No passe vegetables or other presents are pressed upon us and one can drive feeling confident that his car will not drop into a hole dug in the road.

The intricacies of feng-shui are still dear to the hearts of the people of Ichowfu. We are just beginning the erection of a hospital and twice have encountered this superstition. Some twenty years ago the owner of property adjacent to our hospital lot consulted a Weihsien man noted for ability to locate graves in a favorable situation. Graves were prepared but our neighbor's health has been excellent and they have not been needed.

As soon as he saw that we were building a four story building he hurriedly consulted the man from Weihsien and was told that if the foreigners built the feng-shui of the graves would be irreparably ruined. He became very angry and said some plan must be found to keep the foreigners from putting up the hospital.

We had contracted with some nearby brick makers for bricks. Not far distant from the kilns were some graves. To the owners of these went our friend and told him that the digging in the earth for material for the bricks would eventually spoil the feng-shui of the place. Together they consuled the county official with the result the owners of the kilns have been instructed to cease work and destroy the kilns.

It seems almost impossible that in this day could be found an official who would be willing to so hinder the work of building a hospital, but such is the case. We will, of course, get our bricks elsewhere and our friend and neighbor will have to spend a few dollars for firecrackers to clean up the atmosphere of the place or move the graves to a more favorable location.

Annual Lawn Party Of B. W. A. Colorful Affair

The annual lawn party of the British Women's Association was held yesterday afternoon in the garden of Mrs. Percy Liddell's home, 273 Avenue Haig. Perfect weather, not too warm for the proper enjoyment of spectators and of players in the tennis sets prevailed and gave the ladies an opportunity to display lovely summer frocks. The garden, charming in its radiant blooming, was made more colorful still by the light shades of organdy and silk that were worn by the guests.

All details of the B.W.A.'s regular annual celebration of the birthday of King George were worked out perfectly, and a most enjoyable afternoon was the result.

Mrs. Gull, chairman of the B.W.A., and Mrs. O. M. Green, vice-chairman, met the guests at the door of the house, after they had passed under the allied flags that were draped across the arched entrance to the grounds. Refreshments, consisting of ice cream, tea, sandwiches, cakes and cooling drinks, in charge of the Entertainment section, were dispensed in the house, and on the verandah and lawn where small tables were set.

The natural charm of the garden, in its best flower dress, was further augmented by the flags that were set on standards about the grounds, and by the small pennants that were festooned on wires around the tennis courts. The Liddell garden is noted for its crimson roses, and these were in full bloom for the party. Mounds of them made vivid splotches of red against the green.

The two tennis courts were in use through the entire afternoon, a succession of players coming and going through interesting and well-played sets. This feature of the afternoon's program was in charge of the Sports Section, under the leadership of Mrs. Ford.

A full membership of the B.W.A. and many invited guests attended the party.

Wirth, who is 47, is a grandson of the English multi-millionaire who made his fortune in mining interests in Australia and South Africa. Wirth will place the estate in the hands of managers and continue to live in Lodi, where he was born.

SPECIAL DAILY FEATURE

FINANCIAL AND TRADE ARTICLE

TIENTSIN HAS SHOWN GREAT ADVANCE IN LAST 10 YEARS

Customs Reports Trace Development Of Port

TRADE IS GROWING

Interesting Facts Are Revealed In Compilation

Outstanding features in ten years of Tientsin's commercial development are given in the December Reports, recently issued by the Chinese Maritime Customs. It was in this period that the northern port, in spite of wars and various political upheavals, made remarkable industrial progress rivalling Shanghai in several important lines.

The most noticeable development during the decade, says the Reports, was the falling off in the foreign imports of grey and white cotton piece goods and yarn, accompanied by a steady increase in price until the recent slump. The place of the imports of these goods was largely filled by increasing importations of native grey goods and by the local production of cotton yarn and cloth. Prints, dyed goods and fancies increased in quantities throughout the period, with the setback which began in 1921.

Generally speaking, metals and sundries continued a normal increase from the beginning of the decade until 1915, dropped away for the years 1916-18, and then rapidly made amends during the next three years. The imports of foreign cigarettes increased to a value of 6 1/3 million taels in 1917 and then sagged away to 2½ millions in 1921 on account of the increase in the importation of Chinese cigarettes, which reached a value of 5¼ million taels in 1921, and by the products of two local factories which are foreign-owned.

STRONG DYE REVIVAL

Aniline dyes disappeared from the list of imports from 1915 to 1917, but in 1921, with a value of 1 1/3 million taels, exceeded the record for 1913. Artificial liquid indigo followed much the same course. Electrical materials and fittings kept fairly normal, with a big expansion in 1920-21.

Of the 17,000,000 taels worth of machinery and the 35,000,000 taels worth of railway materials and rolling stock which were imported during the decade, the last three years account for 13,000,000 and 20,500,000 taels, respectively. Kerosene oil was fairly normal and works out at an average of 25,500,000 gallons a year. Sugar imports averaged 620,000 piculs of the foreign article and 84,000 piculs of the native.

The import of wheat flour and grain (maize, kaoliang, rice and wheat) during the ten years totalled 18,000,000 piculs, valued at 64,000,000 taels. During 1920-21, 8,000,000 piculs of grain were brought in, the greater portion of which was used for famine relief work. The value of imports from Chinese ports in 1921, at 47 1/3 million taels, was nearly three times that of 1912.

In exports, raw cotton shows an average of 345,000 piculs annually, but the production has increased considerably, providing the local mills with their supplies. Cotton seed, the export of which commenced in 1910, increased to an annual average in 1919-21 of 430,000 piculs.

Other products which have shown great expansion are carpets, egg products, liquorice (the export for 1921 being 134,500 piculs), and groundnut oil. The old staples that have shown expansion are beans, cement, coal, hemp, sesamum seed, straw braid, walnuts, and skins and furs. Sheep's wool remained constant at about 250,000 piculs a year until 1920, when there was a glut abroad; however, a spurt of 403,000 piculs in 1921—stimulated more by the opportunity of entering America before the operation of the new tariff than by good trade—made up for this and brought the average for the ten years up to 256,000 piculs.

MILL DEVELOPMENT

The most important development in the manufacturing field during the decade was the introduction of modern cotton spinning mills on a large scale under Chinese management. In the period six mills were erected, operating 130,000 spindles, which, when completed, will have 230,000 spindles. The war lent an impetus to these enterprises. The Yu Yuan Spinning and Weaving Co. was the first to start operations (1916) and passed through a most prosperous period, netting, it is said, $2,000,000 a year for three years. Flour milling was another successful industry started during the war. There are three flour mills in operation in Tientsin, having a total daily output of 11,000 sacks. As an enormous amount of flour is imported from Shanghai and Manchurian centers every year, the local industry is capable of considerable expansion, and it is stated that the establishment of several more large mills is contemplated.

A late feature of the commercial life of Tientsin is the reappearance of a large number of German firms. By the end of 1921, thirty German firms had re-established themselves and are making a strong effort to recapture their former trade, greatly assisted by the favorable exchange and the long credit which they somehow are able to extend to their customers.

Heavy Rains In Cotton Belt Cause Apprehension

(Reuter's American Service)

New York, May 2.—Southern crop news was not quite so reassuring this week as it was a week ago. Heavy rains in parts of the central and eastern belts checked work and generally set the crop back, causing numerous complaints which were supplemented by reports of cold weather in Texas and Oklahoma. It is generally conceded now that the crop needs a spell of warm, dry weather to give it a good start and enable it to regain some of its lost ground. The action of the market following the receipt of these less favorable news did not indicate any serious apprehension over crop prospects, as it was recognised that there is still time for the crop to regain a very favorable position, but there is little doubt that the coming season will witness another very nervous market situation, with possibly undue emphasis placed on every change in crop conditions. The most recent private crop reports suggest an acreage increase of around four percent. But the general average has run from four to six percent increase.

NO WEEVIL WORRIES

Singularly enough, stress is laid in some of the reports on the absence of apprehension over the weevil question, the idea being that farmers in many sections feel confident that they have gained the upper hand, either through the use of calcium arsenate or the careful cleaning up of beks during the winter. In some parts of the belt it is claimed that severe cold weather during the winter killed off many of the weevils. Fertilizer is being used quite extensively, more particularly on farms that have practiced diversification, the hope being to increase the yield of cotton by intensive cultivation while satisfying banks and merchants that food and feedstuffs are not being neglected. A shortage of labor is being complained of in many of the private reports. While the exodus of negroes northward seems to have ceased they are deserting the farms in many sections and seeking work in industrial centers. Cotton men returning from Texas have confirmed the impression prevailing here that the state intends to grow a crop of cotton this season if it is at all possible. It shows the biggest increase of acreage in any state, and with favorable weather conditions should produce a bumper yield. The world is hoping for a good crop of cotton this year. European spinners claim that, once given enough cotton at a fair price, they would be in a position to meet a latent demand for textiles of all descriptions on a scale not encountered since the Armistice. Although there are still fully three or four months to be considered, it is believed here that mills will somehow manage to piece out existing stocks until the marketing season begins. Drastic curtailment now going on in America is helping to bridge over this period. It is said that Fall River manufacturers expect curtailment in their mills to continue well into the summer. New Bedford cotton mill production for the month of April averaged about 55 to 60 percent of normal and was less than for any period since the strike of four years ago.

EXPORTS LIBERAL

Exports have continued liberal again this week and crossed the five million bale mark for the season. Much of the cotton shipped has gone to the Continent, presumably Germany, and reports say there is a continued demand at Southern points from European buyers.

Advices from the local cotton goods market have indicated little change in the situation. It is hard to interest buyers and small orders are thankfully received. Feeling that the hand-to-mouth policy has proved very satisfactory thus far, buyers believe it will be continued unless there is a big jump in raw cotton values to stimulate demand for goods.

The Federal Trade Commission has submitted its report on the cotton futures markets. It found no evidences of restraint of competition or of "manipulation" but recommended the adoption of a system of Southern warehouse deliveries on New York contracts, which it declared, would do much to maintain New York future prices in their proper relation to spot prices. This feature is being strongly opposed by leading cotton merchants here, and is understood to be unacceptable to several of the Congressmen who have been most insistent in proposing legislation to regulate trading on the big exchanges.

AMERICAN SALES TO ORIENT SHOW NOTABLE GAINS

Increasing Much Faster Than Exports To Any Other Port Of World

Sales of United States merchandise to the Orient are showing remarkable gains, especially when compared with those to other parts of the world. Exports from the United States to Asia and Oceania in the eight months ending with February, 1924, the latest available record, show an increase of about 44 percent over the same period of last year, while those to the remainder of the world show a gain of only 7 percent, in the like period.

The share which exports to Asia and Oceania form for the total exports for the eight months' period is 17.1 percent, against 13.4 percent in the same period of last year, 12.7 percent in 1920, 9.8 percent in the closing year of the war and 7.9 percent in the year immediately preceding the war. The total value of the exports to Asia and Oceania in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1924, seems, according to the Trade Record of the National City Bank, likely to exceed $700,000,000, as against slightly less than $200,000,000 in the fiscal year 1914, all of which preceded the opening of the war. In the eight months ended with February the total to Asia and Oceania was $512,000,000, against only $356,000,000 in the same months of last year.

This big gain in our exports to the Orient, says the Trade Record, is the more interesting because manufactures form a very large percentage of our exports to that part of the world. In the latest year for which exact details on this point are available, manufactures formed over 75 percent of our exports to Asia and Oceania, and the big gains in our 1924 sales to that section of the world indicate that manufactures are holding their own in the post-war competition with those produced in the other parts of the manufacturing world.

While, due in some degree to the abnormal demands of Japan which followed the earthquake, this big increase in our present exports to the Orient is by no means confined to that country. In fact, increases occurred in our sales to practically all of the important countries of both Asia and Oceania. The value of the exports to China, India, the Straits Settlements, Australia, New Zealand, the Philippine Islands, Kwangtung, the Far Eastern Republic and Asiatic Russia shows in each case larger totals for the eight months ended February 29, than in the same period of last year.

Details as to the articles in which this increase occurs confirm the suggestion that the growth occurs chiefly in manufactures. The number of passenger automobiles sent to the eight countries of Asia and Oceania for which 1924 figures are available—China, Japan, India, Australia, New Zealand, the Dutch East Indies, the Philippines and Palestine—show a total for the eight months of 34,568 machines, against 14,620 in the like period of last year, and of commercial automobiles over 8,000, against 2,000 in the eight months of the current fiscal year increased approximately 156 percent over the same period of last year, while those to other parts of the world increased only 44 percent.

Tin plate is another illustration of the growing demand of the Orient for our manufactures. The tin plate exported to India in the eight months ended February 29 totaled 23,000,000 pounds, against less than 1,000,000 in the same months of last year; to China, 39,000,000 pounds, against less than 2,000,000; to Hongkong, the gateway of Southern China, 10,000,000, against less than half million in the same months of last year.

Of refined copper, the quantity sent to China was 35,000,000 pounds, against 14,000,000. Of printing presses, the number to Australia and New Zealand doubled. Gasoline, fuel oil and lubricating oil also showed increases in movements to the Orient and in auto tires the number exported to Asia and Oceania increased about 10 percent, while those to other parts of the world declined nearly 40 percent.

The Wizardry Of Mosjukhin

THERE is at the present time in our midst an artist who stands in the very first rank of his profession and whom the sport of chance has brought to our very doors to entrance us with a voice of incomparable beauty. That man is M. Mosjukhin, the richly endowed Russian operatic basso-cantante, to hear whom is to be transported from the mundane to the purely aesthetic. He comes from Russia—the spiritual home of true artistry. Within recent years, we have been privileged with visits from artists having names to conjure with—Pavlova, Elman, Heifetz, Mirovitch, Piastro. The great Anna revealed to us the poetry of motion, while the others proved themselves consummate masters of the instruments which, in their deft hands, spoke almost with a human voice and seemed to be endowed with human emotions. But there is an art no less great than the art these people brought us—the art of the human voice—and in this M. Mosjukhin excels.

Those who had the privilege of hearing at the Town Hall this redoubtable singer, with the finely chiselled countenance of an old Greek statue and the soul of the true artist heard for the first time in Shanghai a voice of transcendent beauty. Those who have heard the great Chaliapin sing speak of Mosjukhin as being his equal. The advent of the late War temporarily robbed Mosjukhin of the richly merited guerdon of genius, but he is on the eve of sailing for Japan, South America and other places prior to entering the United States, which has made so many artists great. Assuredly, genius like that of M. Mosjukhin will not long remain hidden under a bushel, and he is surely destined to achieve an international reputation. Shanghai has the heaven-sent opportunity of hearing this living personification of the Russian song at a farewell concert to be given on Friday, June 6, at 182, Bubbling Well Road, the residence of Mrs. A. G. Stephen, with whom intending patrons of the concert are requested to communicate. Like her popular husband who presides over the destinies of "Wayfoong," Mrs. Stephen has an unerring judgment in other directions, and there can be no question of her artistic sense. Those who attend the concert are promised a genuine musical treat; those who miss it will be the poorer for it.

Bolshevism In South Africa

THAT all is not well in South Africa is revealed by the series of disturbances in the political campaign which have already broken up many South African Party meetings, notably at Durban on Sunday night, where General Smuts was unable to get a hearing. The General subsequently declared: "The red flag has come to South Africa and free speech is denied us. This will do more than any speech of mine to arouse the public to a realisation of the dangers of Pact rule."

Conditions in South Africa forced themselves on other parts of the world besides the Union in the opening part of April, when the projected visit of the Prince of Wales had to be cancelled by the Government decision to dissolve Parliament. It was remarkable that this decision should have had to be made on the very day that the official itinerary of the Prince was published. Arriving at Capetown on May 19, his round of visits in the Cape Province, the Free State and Natal was to have lasted until June 25, when he was to enter the Transvaal, arriving in Johannesburg on the afternoon of July 4 and remaining until the 6th. From the Transvaal he was to have gone to Rhodesia, his stay lasting from July 8 to 25, after which he would have returned to the Cape by way of Mafeking, Kimberley, etc., leaving for England on August 1. The postponement of the Prince's visit was inevitable as soon as it became clear that His Royal Highness would traverse a country plunged into all the turmoil of a general election and was the cause of the keenest disappointment, not the least disappointed person being the Prince himself, since he has been looking forward with pleasure and eagerness to visiting the only Dominion yet outside his travels, and one, too, of peculiar interest to one with his keen love for the outdoor life.

In deciding to go to the country, General Smuts and his colleagues have been influenced by considerations which go beyond the result of the Wakkerstroom election, where a reverse was sustained, or even the fact that during the past three years the Government have lost eight seats and gained none. It is not surprising that the public has not recognised that the Ministry have of late been considerably embarrassed by a small but active group of their own supporters—the Natal members—seeing that even the Opposition have not been aware of the position. It has been fairly obvious for some time past that the Natalians were endeavoring to hustle the Government with what cannot but be regarded as selfish motives. During a recent debate on unemployment, Mr. Saunders made what practically amounted to an attack on the Government on the ground of industrial policy, a sphere in which, by the way, the latter have been particularly concerned to secure progress. This action on the part of one of their number was, it is believed, merely a minor, though more public, sign of a spirit which had been shown more definitely outside the House by the group in question, and was not unconnected with claims for greater representation for Natal in the Cabinet. That province, of course, has no interest in supporting the Pact; the majority of its inhabitants are more definitely opposed to General Hertzog's policy than any section in the Union, and have as little in common with Labor. The fact remains that there appear to have been difficulties added to those which faced a Ministry which has had an extraordinarily long period of office, and has, at the latter end of it, had to go through what hardly any Government has ever survived—a long period of depression and uncertainty.

The difficulties of the South African Government are not to be under-rated. We must not ignore the fact that South Africa is the home of several large races of colored people—Zulus, Basutos, Swazis, etc., and, therefore, is not "doomed" to be black by the sole fact of employing colored people in the mines. South Africans have kept their industry of mining on a forward basis by the use of available labor and have not allowed the gold production to sink as Australia has done. The labor for the mines is wisely drawn from the more densely populated north, as South African statesmen know that the native races domiciled are required for, and are more suited to, employment in farming, pastoral and other pursuits. The result of this policy is that South African mining production is high on the world's list, and great headway has been made in wool-raising and other industries. The white South African compares more than well, both physically and intellectually, with the Australian, and by the policy of facing courageously the world problem of contact with the colored races, is developing an intelligence and breadth of mind far above that likely to be promoted by the shrinking policy of declining to have anything to do with different races to our own. It is in that region of the world that a political drama of unusual interest is being enacted the outcome of which will be watched with eager interest.

Trade Marks And Indemnities

WHILE we have not yet received the full text of the Chinese Indemnity Bill proposed by the British Government, we know enough of the spirit underlying it to be certain that the measure is designed to take the form of some sort of restoration to China of the indemnity exacted of her as a result of the Boxer Rebellion. It is not unworthy of note that this proposal comes forward at a time when observers profess to see the growth of an anti-foreign sentiment in China, on a scale which cannot entirely be ignored. But be that as it may, there was something of merit in the suggestion that the second reading of the bill should be postponed until the Chinese Government altered their Trade Marks Bill so as to protect British manufacturers and traders against having trade marks, which they have been using for a number of years, fraudulently taken away. Mr. Samuel Samuel, who made the suggestion, went even farther. He suggested the suspension of the Indemnity Bill until it was possible to introduce a measure applying the money due from China for the compensation of British merchants who might suffer as a result of the iniquitous provisions of the Chinese trade marks law.

While such a procedure would be good enough from the point of view of those likely to suffer loss if some change is not made in the Chinese bill, in principle it is bad. But we think the Premier's opinion that the behavior of China in this connection should not be mixed up with the act of grace which the British Government proposes to perform, to be equally bad. The merits of the case, in the first instance, have been fully discussed without any apparent modification for the better, and there must come a time when other means of procuring a change of heart must be adopted, in addition to that gentle appeal to sweet reasonableness. Again the Chinese Government has to pay the Boxer Indemnity, no matter what ultimate disposition is made of the money for the good of China, and we fail to see where the diversion of the funds from that object and their devotion to the indemnification of British traders damaged by this obnoxious Chinese law, would do any more than solve half the question. It would, to a certain extent, mitigate British losses, but would not have any appreciable effect so far as obtaining a revision of the Chinese Trade Mark Bill is concerned.

If the British legislature is prepared to pass the Chinese Indemnity Bill, it should do so irrespective of what other matters of dispute might exist between the two countries. But we doubt whether it ought, in the circumstances to be prepared to do anything of the kind. We do not suggest for one moment that it should continue to treat the Boxer indemnity as hitherto, but we are strongly of the opinion that the British Government should hesitate to make the beau geste when British interests are being seriously threatened by an act of the Chinese Government. Consequently we would rather see the matter of the Chinese Indemnity Bill shelved for the moment than witness the adoption of any other principle than that underlying the present measure. To follow Mr. Samuel's suggestion would, in effect, be to free China from the consequences of enforcing the measure about which there is so much earnest and justified complaint, and it is clear that if foreign traders are to be penalised as a result of the Trade Marks Bill, their Governments will have to find some other means of obtaining redress for them, rather than from sources already established as the result of past Chinese misdeeds.

If we have shown that such a proposition would, in effect, have no deterrent result so far as China was concerned, though it might have the pleasant effect of reimbursing traders for their losses, there is still another serious aspect to the case, which should appeal most emphatically to the Chinese themselves. We regard the Trade Marks Bill as a very definite factor operating against the Chinese case for the surrender of extra-territorial rights. Foreign attention has, for years, been centered on Chinese judicial procedure, the methods of the administration of justice being cited as the most cogent reason for the maintenance of the status quo. If that reason be strong enough at the present time, what are foreign Governments going to say on the subject, when they find the Chinese Government enacting laws foreign to all standards of equity, and penalising those very people whom the Chinese desire entrusted to their care? Inequitable legislation is equally as bad as the unsatisfactory administration of the law once it is passed, and the risk which the Chinese incur in following such a policy is that this impairment of their sovereignty, against which they have so bitterly complained, is more likely to be prolonged than shortened by such measures as this. On the whole, therefore, we cannot escape the conviction that the question of the Boxer Indemnity should not be mixed up with the present dispute. If foreign traders are damaged by this Chinese act, their Governments should pursue other remedies, and we fancy some of them can be much more potent than the mere diversion of certain funds already payable as the result of past damage to foreigners in China.

America As A Customer For Chinese Products

THE U. S. Commerce Reports for April 21 speak of the growing importance of the United States as a customer for the raw products of this country, the imports of Chinese materials into America for 1923 aggregating G.$187,602,172, which, compared with the imports for 1922 of G.$134,609,105, show an increase of nearly 40 per cent. And, according to the report, "when it is considered that quantities of Chinese products reach the United States by way of transshipment points such as Hongkong and Japan, it is evident that this trade with China is of greater importance than the direct imports from that country to the United States would indicate."

The most important item in China's sales to America last year was raw silk to the amount of 12,261,561 pounds valued at G.$83,395,432. The amount of this product shipped to the United States in 1922 was 8,378,079 pounds valued at G.$56,609,881, the larger figure for last year being due apparently to the stimulation produced in the Chinese silk market by the Japanese earthquake. China's share of raw silk importation into America last year was 21 per cent. of the total, a gain of some 5 per cent. over the previous year. Another element which is now beginning to show in China's silk exports to America is the strenuous work which has been conducted in this country in recent years by American silk interests to induce the Chinese to improve their product and adapt it to the needs of the silk-spinners in the United States.

Another significant increase in China's sales to America last year over the preceding twelve months was shown in the tea figures. The total amount of China tea purchased in America in 1923 was G.$3,330,166, an increase of G.$1,202,451 over 1922. This commodity as well as that of silk offers possibilities for improvement and it is unfortunate indeed that it should be necessary for foreign interests to take the initiative in showing China's dealers and producers how to improve their own products in order to sell more in the United States.

Other products of China which are finding constantly increasing markets in America are covered in the U. S. Commerce Report as follows:—

"Wood-oil imports from China, which is practically the only source of supply for the United States, increased from G.$7,891,251 in 1922 to G.$13,397,000 in 1923—the largest importation of this commodity into the United States on record. The growing dependence upon China for this almost essential ingredient in the manufacture of paints, varnishes, etc., is indicated by the increasing demand from the United States.

"Other Chinese products which showed material advances in American trade during 1923 were carpet wool, raw cotton, goat and kid skins, soya-bean oil, carpets and carpeting, and miscellaneous hides and skins. Among commodities which figured less prominently in the imports from China were bristles, eggs and egg products, laces and embroideries, hair nets, and straw braid.

"In spite of the disturbed conditions existing in China the United States' share of its total exports has grown from a little over 9 per cent. in 1913 to nearly 15 per cent. in 1922. With this growing demand for China's products showing tendencies to increase still further, and considering that the major part of this importation is used for basic-manufacturing purposes, it would appear that the intensified activity of American industries will result in a considerable expansion of the United States' import trade with China."

IDEALS

Everything is twofold. There is the thing itself, and there is the picture of the thing which is in the mind. That mental picture is called an Idea.

When we have a task we want to accomplish, a condition we want to attain, or any purpose at all, we form a mind-concept of the thing desired. That is called an Ideal.

When the architect builds a house he draws his plans which the workmen follow. The ideal is the soul's plan upon the trestle-board. Where there is no ideal, there is no development, no progress, no attainment, but the man drifts, and usually degenerates; just as the workmen without a disposing plan could make no house, but only a heap of stones.

When the orchestra plays it follows the score of the composer. The ideal is the soul's score. Without it the soul is disordered, torn, and unhappy, just as there would be only wild discord if every musician in the orchestra played as he pleased without considering the others.

When the ship leaves port the captain knows where he wants to go. To the soul the ideal is as the ship's destination. Most people that never arrive, fail because they have no goal. They sail aimlessly. They mistake motion for progress, and often the motion is in a circle.

Get an ideal. You do not succeed, because you do not know what you want, or you don't want it intensely enough.

Get an ideal. Determine upon what thing is most worth while to you in the whole world. Whether you reach that thing or not, the fact that you strike toward it, making every faculty, every deed and dream, bend toward one objective, will give symmetry, unity, and force to your personality.

Have an ideal of the kind of man you want to be, and try to express that in your every-day life.

Have an ideal of the position you want to occupy, and let every day's activities train you for that position.

Form an idea of the manners you would like to have, of the career you would choose, of the accomplishments you would find useful, of the language you would use, of the way you would conduct your business, fulfil your art, or demean yourself in your profession. Only so can you grow day by day and achieve contentment.

You may never reach your ideal; it may keep floating on before. But the sailor never reaches the north star. Yet, without a north star he could never come to port.

Books And So Forth

By Frederic F. Van de Water (F. F. V.)

"Lazy laughter," by Woodward Boyd (Scribners), holds up to merriment the sloth and aimlessness of the Younger Generation and some of its immediate forebears. . . . Our typewriter needs cleaning. We have been aware of that every morning for the last ten days. Likewise we need a new ribbon. We have been postponing several jobs that we ought to do, day after day, because they'll look at a lot better done in blacker type than our machine in its present condition affords. . . . Our pipe needs looking after, too. Something seems to be the matter with its flue. We expend in smoking it through once enough matchwood to boil a quart of water. . . . There might be the germ of an idea in a discussion of tobacco and the dwindling number of paragraphs one gets out of a pipeful. We wonder whether the rest of those who smoke while they work have been impressed by the same phenomenon. One loading used to take us through at least a page. Now we no sooner get our corporal's guard of ideas assembled in line than we have to stop and find where we put our tobacco tin. By the time we have discovered it our ideas have dispersed all over the lot again. Why doesn't some smoking mixture advertise "One thousand words guaranteed per ounce?" . . . We ought to dig that cigarette butt out of the waste-basket. If we were nearer the end of this job we'd probably summon up enough to do it. As it is, we'll be here so much longer that it's bound to burn out or set things afire before we move, anyhow.

Woodward Boyd is undoubtedly easy to look at. She bobs her hair. There is a picture of her on the paper cover of her novel. Maybe it's been touched up a little. We wonder how much influence consciousness of sex exerts on the trade of book reviewing, anyhow. We imagine there must be a certain prejudice in favor of the symmetrical author among critics of the opposite sex. We didn't find Miss (or Mrs.) Boyd's picture until we had finished her story, anyhow. We thought "Lazy Laughter" amusing and keen before we realised what she looked like, or even what her sex was. We have the sort of mind that one doesn't dare trust with the blurbs on paper jackets until we have read the volume and formed our own opinion. . . . The sky above West Ninety-fifth Street is a particularly exasperating blue at present. It belongs properly to June. It makes us want to go fishing. Of course, we wouldn't go now even if we could. It's too darn much trouble chopping holes in the ice. Any man who'll go ice fishing will shoot chipmunks. . . . Our son is quiet that we're morally certain he's into some devilment. We ought to go see, but if we once get up out of this chair, we know, from bitter experience, it will take us at least a half hour to get ourself back into it again. We'll wander about the living room and maybe lie down on the couch and think. We'll look out of the window. We'll be morally certain to pick up the morning paper. It's much better for us to sit here and wait for the crash that usually terminates these juvenile excursions into the silences. . . . The only trouble with continued application to a job like this is that eventually you finish it and then there's something else to do.

Miss Poyd, the book blurb says, is in her early twenties. We think she has done a good job, whatever her age. From the tone of her book we should imagine her older. She is too impartial to seem either extremely youthful or venerable. She handles her theme deftly and satirically but impersonally. Young writers so often sound the way our son does frequently when people come to call. Very old writers resemble us, in conversation with our son after the company has gone. It is the middle-aged and Miss Boyd who have the art of impartial presentation. Her young people aren't near as acute as F. Scott Fitzgerald's. We don't sit around helplessly while reading of them and yearn to drown them all. . . . The mid-morning mail has just brought us two more books. They swell the pile in the corner to a complete cord. . . . The depressing part of it is that if we ever get around to reading them all we'll find maybe four good ones and three bad ones and a couple of hundred that aren't one thing or the other. . . . Mediocrity is naturally one of the ideals of democracy, but it's rather hard on critics. . . . So many modern efforts in art and literature can be dismissed fittingly with the verdict "Here's another one."

The theme of "Lazy Laughter" is the indolence and purposelessness of humanity. To some, Miss Boyd's characters may be exasperating. To us, they are merely comforting. We feel, somehow, that we are all members of the same club. . . . The trouble with most people seems to us to be that they permit their laziness to be knocked off them through contact with the world. They hustle and fuss and fume, and by the time old age creeps upon them and they find they're good for nothing but loafing, they also discover that they're forgotten how. . . . There isn't much to do in a poorhouse but loaf, yet so few people fit themselves to enjoy it. . . . We ought to send our suit out to the tailor. . . . We ought to pay some of the stack of bills on the corner of the bureau. . . . We ought to tell our son not to make so much racket. . . . We ought to be in St. Louis at the present moment. . . . Now that we've practically finished this job, we ought to start in and try to build up that idea we had for a short story a week or so ago. . . . On the other hand, we've worked pretty hard this morning. We think maybe we'll wait and loaf a little until after lunch.

WANT CONCESSION FOR EXPLOITATION OF NEW SERVICE

Yamashita Kisen Kaisha To Start Direct Service To Indo-China

A concession is about to be obtained by the Yamashita Kisen Kaisha for the exploitation of a direct steamship service between Japan and French Indo-China permission being granted its ships to call at unopen ports in the French territory by the Government-General of French Indo-China as well as the Japanese Government. The recent agreement reached between the French and Japanese Government authorities regarding the revision of the customs duties in Indo-China, taking advantage of the visit of M. Martial Merlin, Governor-General of Indo-China, favorably stimulated Japanese shipowners interested in this line of trade.

The Yamashita Kisen Kaisha and Osaka Shosen Kaisha are now the only two Japanese shipping firms having direct interest in the French Indo-China shipping. The former now operates a regular steamship service between Keelung in Formosa and Haiphong, the foremost open port of Indo-China, with Amoy, Swatow, Hongkong, Haikou and Peihai as intermediate ports of call. The Chukwa Maru and Taikwa are employed on the service and operate the service twice every four weeks under an annual subsidisation of Y120,000 by the Governor-General of Formosa.

MAINTAIN REGULAR SERVICE

A regular passenger and freight service is also maintained by the Osaka Shosen Kaisha between Keelung and South Sea ports with Saigon included in the ports of call. The firm employs the Kishu Maru and Bushu Maru on the line and attaches much importance to the call at Saigon, as it is the principal export port for Indo-China rice. Shortly before the visit of M. Merlin to Japan, a movement was started by the Yamashita Kisen Kaisha for the acquisition of right for extending its present Haiphong service to unopen ports in Indo-China, such as Kaiyen, Tailee and Yongping, and shifting its base of operation from Formosa to Japan.

The matter concerning the shifting of base to Kobe from Keelung is now under investigation by the Formosan Government-General and the Department of Communications and it is expected this more is likely to be permitted by the authorities concerned. As to the exploitation of trade at unopen ports of Indo-China, the matter must go through necessary procedure in the Indo-China Government before the concession is acquired by the firm through the Japanese Government but it bids fair to be finally obtained through the strenuous efforts of the Hongkong manager of the Yamashita interest.

IS COAL SHIPPING PORT

Yongping is noted as a coal exporting port as well as Hongay in Indo-China and the Yamashita K. K. intends to realize profit in the coal shipment trade, Japan lacks a direct steamship service to Indo-China and the prospective revision of the customs duty in the French territory will induce the exportation of a large amount of cargo from Japan. In that case the direct steamship service may become a problem of utmost importance to trade merchants both in Japan and Indo-China and permission for extending the service to Kobe or Yokohama, if it is deemed necessary, will be had in the near future by the firm.

All cargo now destined to Indo-China from Japan is first unloaded at Hongkong and then forwarded to the destination after transhipment there and this occasions much inconvenience and loss to both shippers and shipowners, because ships must pay extra demurrage in Hongkong while they are lying at anchor there for the necessary two days. The direct steamship service will not only obviate this necessity but will also tend to lower the present high steamer freight charged on cargo thus transported.

Though no measure has yet been adopted by the Osaka Shosen Kaisha for its Saigon line, the firm will apply to the Government for permission for its ships to call at unopen ports, if the negotiations now conducted by the Yamashita interest with the French Government proceed satisfactorily.

CITES NEED OF FACILITIES TO TREAT INSANE

Professor A. Bary Delivers Lecture At Royal Asiatic Hall

Shanghai's need for more adequate facilities for the treatment of the insane was stressed by Professor A. Bary, vice-president of the Medical Section of the China Society of Science and Art, in a lecture on "Modern Theories of Mental Diseases In Relation To Treatment," delivered yesterday afternoon at the Royal Asiatic Society Hall.

Professor Bary urged upon the society that it take the lead in trying to create in Shanghai a modern mental hospital for the treatment of Chinese.

"For the Europeans," Prof. Bary said, "there exists in Shanghai the so-called mental ward of the Victoria Nursing Home. Though from the modern point of view it is not ideal, yet, thanks to the endeavors of a well trained staff, modern treatment of mental disease may be performed.

"On the contrary, for the Chinese population, there does not exist any institution that in the least might remind one of a mental hospital, and the state of things in this connection is literally the same as it was in Europe in the eighteenth century. I have seen Chinese insane patients in two places. One was a Cantonese 'hospital' in the Settlement in Haining Road. There the patients were chained to the floor, and it was a pity to hear their insistent prayers to free them from their chains.

"A year ago, at my suggestion, the Shanghai Medical Society approached the Municipal Council to abolish such unworthy conditions, but as far as I know, nothing is changed as yet.

"The other place is the St. Joseph's Hospital in the Native City. There the patients are not chained to the floors, but they are shut up in small cage-like cells with thick iron bars resembling the cages of wild beasts in a zoological garden. Many of the patients are also handcuffed.

"Under such circumstances, there cannot be the least possibility of scientific treatment, and thus many Chinese citizens who could be cured and returned to social life are condemned to remain forever prisoners in a barbarian condition."

Earlier in his lecture, Prof. Bary spoke of the advancement in knowledge regarding mental diseases within the past century and general methods of classification of diseases and treatment.

American, British Sailors Guests At Dance At Navy 'Y'

A jolly dance was held last night at the Navy "Y" for American and British sailors. The British tars far outnumbered the American boys since many American ships have left port lately. The British ships represented were, H. M. ships Titania, mother ship, Submarines L 19 and L 7, Mazarin and Scarab, the U. S. ships Palos and Pigeon.

The hall was tastefully decorated with flags and flowers. About sixty young American and British ladies attended the dance. At ten o'clock was the grand march followed by intermission during which refreshments were served. The dance was a successful one there being present about 300 sailors of both nations. The music was furnished by the excellent orchestra of the U. S. S. Palos.

The "Palos" is the smallest of all the American ships that have been in port recently, but her number of entertainers is the largest. During the past eighteen months that the Palos has been in Chungking an orchestra was organized which furnished entertainment for the crew. The orchestra is composed of following men: J. T. L. Allen, drums and traps; J. W. Kuhl, violin; R. M. Mellor, Mandolin; J. J. Cuccaro, banjo; George Imerlishvilly, piano.

The British ships are in port for only a few days and their crews were happy to have a dance on King George's birthday, which was yesterday.

The U. S. S. Black Hawk and the destroyers of the 43rd division will be in Shanghai in a few days and another dance will be given for them.

SINLA BUDDHA
Over 1,800 years old
Made of Gold, Silver, Metal and Copper

This Golden Buddha was fashioned of gold, silver and copper in the Sinla Dynasty, more than 1,800 years ago.

In those days it was the national law of the country to bury a buddha with any eminent official or member of the Royal Family, if he or she died, Buddhism being the national religion.

At that time there was an eminent man called Yu Sam Jai, who was the Prime Minister of the King's Court. When the Prime Minister died the King sent this Buddha to be buired with him, in accordance with the law.

Two hundred and sixty years ago this Buddha was discovered in the grave by the late Prime Minister's descendant.

The Sinla Dynasty was before the age of Korea. In the year 1915, at Osaka, one Sinla Buddha, smaller than this one, was sold by public auction for Y250,000. The height was only 6 inches, and the bottom was broken off.
